

Bringing your property to life

Experience tells us that when selling a home, it can be a struggle to make it stand out from the crowd.

No matter how wonderful your property is, there are many loud and bright advertisements to compete against when you put your home up for sale using online listings

We can help make your property stand out by creating an animated, short videoette for you that will significantly enhance the main features of your home, helping to set your property apart from the rest by bringing your property to life where it matters, on the internet.

These attractive videoettes offer crystal clear and smooth transitions for the best viewing experience, image rich presentation, background music, are “mobile ready” and all our videoettes come with unlimited views.

The short videoettes, individually produced by us for your home, are also displayed on our www.plandj.co.uk website and nationally on Rightmove and other web sites.

We are offering our videoettes free of charge to our clients during November and December.

Using these videoettes, our clients can now help Philip Laney & Jolly to market their property through Facebook.

Clients can easily share these individually produced videoettes with their Facebook contacts, and ask them to “share” details of their property with anyone that they know who may be thinking about moving, or who might have children or other relatives interested in property.

Facebook contacts can then get in touch with us to arrange to view the property.
